SePRO Corporation has completed final transactions in the acquisition of TKI's aquatic herbicide business. The transaction includes product registrations, trade names and other related business assets for the active ingredient fluridone, used extensively in the U.S. aquatics market. The business had been managed by TKI's crop protection business unit, NovaSource, which provides crop protection solutions for niche agricultural markets globally.

TKI produces and markets specialty chemical solutions, including fertilizers, crop protection chemicals and process chemicals and services to diverse markets around the globe. TKI operates 10 manufacturing plants in North America, in addition to an extensive terminal network.
